

Fruit and nuts always go great together, and these peach and almond desserts are no exception. If fresh peaches are in season, they make this dish even better! Look for no cling varieties for an easier time removing the pits.

Almond and Peach Ramekins

- 1 cup skimmed milk
  - 1/3 sugar
  - 3 egg yolks
  - 4 tsp. plain gelatin
- ¼ cup cold water
  - 2 cups plain low fat yogurt
  - 2 tsp almond extract
  - 4 canned peach halves, drained and diced

In a saucepan, simmer milk with 2 tsp. of sugar. Set aside.

In a bowl, combine egg yolks and the rest of the sugar, beat until a band shapes. While stirring constantly, pour a bit of warm mil over egg yolks. Simmer in a double boiler for 1o minutes until mixture thickens and sticks to a spoon.

Swell gelatin in cold water. Gradually add to egg mixture, let cool. Add yogurt and almond extract, stir. Add peaches.

Pour into 8 lightly greased ramekins or a decorative mold. Refrigerate 2 hours until cream sets. Turn out and serve with a fruit coulis of your choice.

Did you know that if you plant a peach pit, it might grow into a tree? It's best to plant in the fall, about 2 to 3 inches under the soil. The orientation of the pit doesn't matter, because the plant will figure out which way is up! Not all varieties will sprout from the pit, so you might have to check with a local gardening resource if you decide to try it.
